Disclaimer:

This job description may not comprise all duties required to be performed by the employee. Management reserves the right to change, edit or delete information in the job description.

The Elements of Student Jobs:

1. Clear Expectations
Supervisors must clearly document, define and exemplify what is expected of the student employee. The student employee will read, sign a copy of an expectations document signifying they understand what is expected.
2. Quality Training
Supervisors are responsible to train students and ensure they receive adequate training and mentoring to be successful. An employee is considered trained in a job when he/she is capable of performing the essential duties and responsibilities safely and correctly. The employee is expected to learn the requirements of the job, undergo continual training and learn new or improved ways to improve job performance.
3. Adequate Supervision
The student employee's performance will be observed and monitored. The student employee has a right to have problems resolved in a timely manner, receive positive reinforcements for a job well done, and be provided with the necessary resources and tools so the job can be performed to standard.
4. Responsibility

The student employee will be given meaningful job assignments which help to fulfill the mission of the department. As the employee demonstrates good performance, the job will be structured to provide increased responsibilities.

5. Accountability

The student employee will be held accountable for job performance. The student employee is expected to “return and report” frequently enough where two-way feedback and correction can take place. Depending on the nature of the assignment or job, accountability reporting will be determined by the supervisor or manager.

6. Application to Life

The student employee should be able to reap benefits that may include responsibilities that have application to the student’s post-University and professional life. These benefits may include but are not limited to developing good work habits, learning accountability and responsibility, taking pride in the work outcome, leadership development and other skills or experiences that may supplement training in the student’s major field of study.

7. Evaluation/Feedback

The student employee is expected to review with the supervisor or manager his/her performance in informal and formal evaluations. The supervisor will review achievements and identify areas of improvement. Evaluation and feedback should be geared towards continuous improvement. Documentation should be kept confidential and filed for reference.

8. Rewards/Progression

The student employee is expected to be employed in a job that will provide “career path” enhancement opportunities such as promotions or other rewards including consideration for merit, responsibility and wage increases. It is the responsibility of the employer to provide jobs that vary in difficulty and responsibility to provide opportunities for the student employee to be promoted or recognized for accomplishment. Documentation should be kept and filed for reference.

9. Commitment

The student employee must agree to a minimum period of employment, as determined by the employer, based upon the departmental needs. The student employee is expected to give a semester’s notice prior to leaving. The job description and orientation checklist will be considered a contract that defines the length and times of employment. The department reserves the right to release the employee from the contract if sufficient need or benefit is demonstrated or the student employee does not meet the department’s expectations.
